DOMESTIC NEWS.

THE YELLOW FEVER.

Terrible Ravages—Cairo Seriously Alarmed.

GRENADA, Miss., Aug. 14. There have been seven deaths and eight new cases of fever from 6 to 8 o'clock the twenty-four hours ending last night. The town is in a filthy condition. At least 300 persons of the population of 12,000 white citizens have left the town. Only one colored person has been taken down so far. It appears to strike the best citizens of the place. Dr. Hughes reports four cases of bloody vomit, all of which will undoubtedly prove fatal. The weather is very unfavorable for the patients, cloudy, and threatening.

All the business houses, except the drug stores, are stopped; no railroad trains are allowed to stop, and supplies are getting scarce. The condition is appalling. Gen. W. Smith and aid, Col. Butler P. Anderson of the Howard Association of Memphis, are untiring in their services and devotion to the stricken, visiting all the distressing districts and furnishing supplies. Sixteen experienced nurses and two doctors have arrived from New Orleans, making the total number of nurses fifty. The resident physicians are completely broken down in their self-sacrificing and unflinching efforts to check the ravages the fever is making. The total number of deaths is thirty, and there have been upwards of 125 cases in all.

A special from Granada says the situation there is horrible. Supplies are getting short as no trains are allowed to stop there. The New Orleans physicians there say that the fever is the most malignant ever known.

Fears of an Outbreak in Cairo, Ill.

CAIRO, Ill., Aug. 14. The prevalence of yellow fever at Grenada and Memphis, unless great apprehension be groundless, of people are passing through the city every day fleeing from the scourge. The quarantine authorities are powerless to keep them out, as they invent all sorts of stories. A boarding-house keeper from New Orleans, having lost all his boarders, three came here and what of opening a boarding house yesterday, when he was promptly bounced.

In New Orleans.

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 14. The following is an official statement of the cases of yellow fever reported in New Orleans: Deaths from noon yesterday to noon today, 20; new cases since noon yesterday, 181; total number of cases to date, 690; total number of deaths to date, 193.

NEW ORLEANS, August 16. The new cases of fever number one hundred and eight; deaths twenty-nine.

Strict Quarantine Regulations.

PENSACOLA, Fla., Aug. 16. The Board of Health now require passengers from infected cities to be detained at quarantine twenty days instead of ten, as heretofore. Quarantine against Memphis and Grenada goes into effect to-day.

THE POTTER COMMITTEE.

New York, Aug 16. The Potter Committee met again this morning. A dispatch was received from Major Burke, of New Orleans, stating that he will arrive Saturday afternoon.

John A. Lesse again took the stand today. He produced a letter from Kellogg dated Willard's Hotel, April 1st, which read:

"DEAR LESSE:—I am going out to see the members of the Commission. Morton never said such a thing in my presence. Wormouth is right and his head is level this time. If they want to throw out the Republicans we have given their life, then let the tail go with the hide. Let them have the Democratic Senators. It would probably help the if they elect a Democrat."

This last clause was in answer to one of Lesse's, and was incomprehensible. The next letter was dated at Willard's Hotel, 24th April 1877, and signed W. P. Kellogg and says:

"I have been working night and day while the job is passing away from the Republican party. They are damned ungratefully, or some of them at least. I hope matters will brighten up for us all.

"W. P. K."

Another letter was read, from Packard to George Jones, of the New York Times, dated July 1st, 1877, and recommending him as a reliable correspondent. Several letters from Senator West were then read. One letter dated United States Senate said, "Let hypocrites howl. Packard's policy you will find to be non-committal," and some other matters of small importance.

The following was read:

WILLARD'S HOTEL, Feb. 25, 1877.

DEAR LESSE:—I received your letter. It took a new aspect if the Commission would progress and Hayes be declared President before the 4th of March. There is, and has been, a great struggle. I noticed that you wrote about the Times special. I immediately telegraphed Dem. Packard will be recognized no doubt by Hayes if not by Grant, before he goes out of office. Don't see how it can be otherwise, and all leading Republicans here are of the opinion; and Louisiana's vote was counted and she did become, the corner stone, so to speak. Such a wonder could only occur in so wonderful a country as this, and only once in a lifetime. Whatever betides, we have made a page of history, such as it is. Whenever you go into another State convention, vote right.

W. P. KELLOGG.

Lesse continuing: The $200,000 relief bill passed in 1874; was for another act also to take care of the niggers and not that they voted straight.

Here another letter was read, alluding to witness who said: That applies to me; that was the the time I was detailed to watch you Potter, when you were on that Committee, when you got away with Phelps and Foster.

Mr. Potter I never met two more honorable men in my life; your statements are a mistake.

Lesse—Well we thought they were very fast and I was detailed to see what you did and find out by you get scared them. Here witness produced the election ticket of 1872 gotten out by the Republicans.

Paine, Esq.—Lee Miller, the Greenback orator, addressed a small crowd in the Opera House last evening. Although his expected arrival had been heralded in this vicinity for the last week there seemed to be a lack of interest manifested in the meeting. Mr. Miller is a pleasant speaker, but his arguments in most cases were untrue and quite a number who went there to learn some thing about the financial affairs of the nat on, went away disgusted.

THE LAKE MEGANTIC RAILROAD.—Messrs Gidding and Arthur Brown, Superintendent of the Bangor and Piscataquis Railroad, have just returned from Sherbrook, where they have been to meet the Hon J. H. Pope and others, who are contracting Mr. Trefol from Sherbrook to Lake Megantic, with a view ultimately to extend it to the State line, there to meet the Bangor and Piscataquis Railroad and form a through line from Montreal and the West to St. John and Halifax, one hundred and fifty miles shorter than any other possible route. We understand they were met very cordially and Mr. Pope fitted out a special train and took them over forty-two miles of the road which was completed and in excellent order, and the iron is now being laid on seventeen additional miles, and eight miles more laid to be graded and iron laid this fall, which will bring them to Lake Megantic, beyond which they will not go until there is more made to meet them.

"THERE IS DIAMONDS IN IT." This morning the sale of tickets for "Col. Sellers," John T. Raymond's great character opens at Bagley & Co's book store. This is the first time that the citizens have had the pleasure of seeing this world renowned actor, and there is every indication that they will avail themselves of this opportunity, and all old Norombega is overflowing. Mr. Raymond will be supported by the Charlotte Thompson Dramatic Company. He chose to be under the management of the Beehive Club, as where the thanks of the citizens of Bangor, are due for two reasons. First, they have provided a set of elegant scenery, and remodled the stage in such a manner that it is almost impossible to believe that it is the same old Norombega, so very marked are the improvements. Instead of the dilapidated old drop curtain which formerly greeted you on entering the hall, you now have one of the finest curtains this side of Boston, and the rest of the scenery is in perfect keeping. Second, in making these long needed improvements, the Club have provided a hall, in which some of the finest actors, of the day, who formerly passed us by, are now willing to appear before a Bangor audience. This has been sufficiently demonstrated during this season, as our citizens have already had the pleasure of witnessing the superb acting of Miss Charlotte Thompson, and now the famous John T. Raymond is coming. We hope our citizens will show their appreciation of the efforts of the Club and fill old Norombega next Monday and Tuesday evening.

BUCKSPORT.

A Greenbacker who Failed to Operate in Time.

A correspondent writes: When Hon. L. Powers and Hon. D. F. Davis spoke at Guilford Centre, and Morrill, a Baptist clergyman and town assessor, who has recently settled at that place, arose at the close of the meeting and stated that he would address the citizens of that place and give them the truth (?) from a Greenback stand point. He also publicly challenged any Republican to meet him in a discussion of the issues at question. This challenge was accepted by Col. J. B. Peaks of Dover, and the arrangements were made to hold it at Guilford Town House, Friday evening, Aug. 16.

Mr. Peaks was there on time as was a large audience to hear. But the heart of the Reverend gentleman began to quake with fear. A council of leading Greenbackers was held and, after considerable whispering, L. R. Whitcher, the Greenback candidate for County Treasurer, called the the meeting to order and nominated Joe Bangs for Chairman, who announced the fact that he came a cripple, which he did not mean, there would be no debate, but that Rev. Mr. Morrill would speak, which he promised to do for about one hour.—It was probably the most stale, dull and pointless Greenback speech that has yet been made in this campaign. Many of his own party (colored) that he "was out of his sphere" in politics.

Col. Peaks at the close gave notice that he would speak at the same place next Monday evening, Aug. 17.

Dr. Leslie can well afford to pay this man more to attend to his preaching than he can to take the stump. Notwithstanding they played this dodgeable trick in order to shake off free discussion the meeting was one of the most notable political in great ever known in these parts.

CHARLOTTE THOMPSON.

A Fine Representation of "The Lady of Lyons."

Those of our old theatre goers who have often remarked that "The Lady of Lyons is an old play," as if that remark were the fullest evidence that it is capable of nothing further at the hands of "any Claude and Pauline," received a very gratifying surprise on Wednesday, (no matter if for the two hundredth time) the grand presentation given by Miss Charlotte Thompson and her company last evening.—We give the lady her just meed of praise when we say that her equal in the plays she has presented in Norombega Hall, has not visited us in a decade, if even during twice that period of time.—There has not been one whose standard of excellence in her art has placed her where Charlotte Thompson stands in the estimation of our people whether it be as Camille, Sarah Mortan, Jane Eyre, Pauline or other characters in her repertoire.

Last evening her audience was large and her reception a warm one, even though "this is the poorest part of the year for theatricals" and she only gave another proof of the power she holds over her audiences by winning and holding their sympathies with her joys and sorrows as the happy bride and the deceived wife. There is about her Pauline a charm not due to studied acting and careful elocution of the audience—a charm of manner, not of the stage and stage training—that holds the audience spell-bound, and were she as poorly supported as "stars" usually are who visit us, she would that charm be irresistible.

The portrayal she gives of a romantic girl's love, of the terrible awakening that greets her as a bride in the poor cottage of "Claude's" mother, is as fine as art and brilliant talent can make it, and we have no hesitation in saying that her audience will be a unit in this opinion. The portrayal too of the strong love of a deceived wife, is a deeply affecting part of her rendition of the role. Here she gave last evening a new phase of her rare powers, and one which the purely critical observer would perhaps select as the finest specimen of her art shown in the play. It was really a choice bit of acting which has rarely been equalled in Norombega. But what we might say of any portion of the lady's acting would apply equally as well to the entire role, and one who reflects on it will content himself with giving his utmost praise to it in its entirety, as we do here. Her support was good. Mr. Bryton makes a far better Claude than one at first credits him with being, as the magnificent Pauline makes the observance of his acting very superficial. Mr. Gregory and Mr. Cooper are very deserving actors and the various characters they have presented while in our city, have been excellently done. Misses Watson and Lewis have also given their respective roles while here, careful support to Miss Thompson.

During the evening Miss Thompson was several times called before the curtain and received very beautiful floral tributes. That she is the favorite of Bangor audiences the warm greeting she received from a full house last evening, gives the best and most gratifying evidence and most completely too does she deserve all that can be done for our people in return for the enjoyment which, through her art, she afford them. Her evening here, is a pleasure to state, will not be, considered as the short visits she has made to Bangor during the past few months, and we feel no hesitation in saying that the warmest of warm welcomes will great her return. She closed this morning for a two weeks visit to her home in New York, at the end of which brief vacation she will begin the fall season. The best wishes of hosts of friends here will go with her.

Some Notes of Fashionable Guests of the Beach.

Mr. Editor:—Our party has dispersed and I send my communication from the interior and of course am writing without the scenes before me.

If the camp-ground should be stripped of all its trees and an observer could look down upon it from an elevation, he would be impressed with the gradual slope of the land and led to wonder at its formation. Yet the zoological action which has produced the ridge, is one of those common in this State, being assisted by a number of upheavals, the effects of which are seen all along the coast of Maine, as well as in the vicinity of Penobscot Bay. The rocks of the slope are many of them foreigners and close to the water's edge may be found fragments of rocks of several periods. The study of these rock formations and of the marine life along the shores of the bay, presents an interesting and instructive subject to many who recruit at Northport. So much for a glance at the resources of the place and the opportunity for advancement in practical knowledge as well as in physical ability which it presents to all who are wise enough to consider health of more importance than a rigid adherence to business. Of the expense of a visit to the place I am only competent to say that they are not heavy for any; but the kind consideration of friends has almost entirely relieved me from the necessity of speaking that part of the question. Down the slope of this sedimentary deposit called Northport, our company, with a few additions of friends, Tuesday last, visited another adoption from Cambridge, wended their way to the wharf where the "Ellis," Capt. Henry Williams, lay moored, by under single reef, waiting for her company. We embarked under very favorable auspices. A fair wind, a pleasant company, and the single reef in the handsome sail admitting the caution of the skipper, added highly to the comfort of the luncheon of all kinds of delicate and delicious edibles which were subjectively partaken of many times before our arrival at Gilbert's Hotel. As a further assurance of our perfect safety and of his perfect command of the Ellis, Captain Williams ordered the intention for us not to be frightened until we saw the gulling gale. We had only to look at his honest countenance on which the cares of all seasons have left their characters and the winds of all seasons and their swarthy signature, to be assured that such a phenomenon as the pulling of that lean was out of the question. A detailed account of our trip would require the issue of another volume to competition, and enlarging as much modern Americans as the learned literature of the railroad spikes. Let it suffice that if any lover had been our so hearty assurance, the tourists would have suffered no loss as that day from us. In fact the only danger we encountered was the attack which a bushel of bivalve lamelli-branch mollusks made upon us; but though they hurled their name straight at us, the Professor was more than a match for them and with his assistance all came out of the good fight a little faded to be sure, but still only following his example in bearing the marks of the fray in a certain paleness of the tip of the nose and a little indecision of the lower lip. On our return from this expedition the "Ellis" proved the soundest, reliable of all at the very end as we drew up to the wharf, it was blowing a tornado and in spite of the yawl that was out ahead towing us, and in spite of the two oars which the yacht was working and in spite of the glassy sea at the time, it slew up a gallon or so of ice cream and a most glorious accompaniment of cake and other trimmings. At the end of the cruise of the Edith it was voted no less a success than the "cruise of the Betsey," and by far less calamitous. When all hands were piped aboft that night, they went with hearts lighter than ever before and after the Professor had braved the terrors of crossing the sleeping tradition like David going to meet the before invincible Goliath and when he had, like the old time sharp come off victorious and was resting his head upon the downy pillow and stretching his tired limbs along the luxurious lineament of his aromatic couch, quiet settled upon the midnight air and Northport and the Edith were forgotten in the delights of reminiscence ice cream and chaud and prospective calls from the camp ground.

DIAGOS.

FROM BROWNVILLE.

Lands and Grover Said on Greenback.

Mr. Editor: Last evening the people of this place were entertained by the Greenback—Democratic candidate for Congress from this District and his associate J. D. Storer, of Lewiston. The hall was filled to overflowing—some to listen to talk, they had already heard at Milo during the afternoon (nearly one half the audience being from that town), while others "came to convince" some to hear the truth, if it was to be told, and many as a matter of curiosity.

Dr. Ladd read to us for an hour, giving us figures entirely beyond our arithmetical knowledge, and astounding to nothing more, than that what he said was presented in a civil and respectable manner and did no her harm now good.

Mr. Storer came upon the stage with a spasmodic flourish, and informed us that as he "rode into our beautiful village, viewing our huge mountains towering in magnificent grandeur along our northern boundary; drank in with satisfaction the delightful odors from our green fields and fertile plains, he thought within himself how beautiful are the gifts of heaven, and how happy must be the people who dwell here."

His talk throughout, took very much the form of a declamation learned for the occasion, and nearly all present so considered it. And still we wait to hear the word that will make our Greenback vote in Brownville.
